SODC leader Ann was 'a great leading lady'

WATLINGTON has been led by Ann Ducker, leader of Watlington District Council, after her death was announced this week.

Mrs Ducker, 71, who lived at Moss Side Farm near Watlington, was suffering with cancer for most of the year and died on Sunday September 21.

By Jack Johnson
john.johnson@oxfordmail.co.uk

She became leader in 2001 and had been a district councillor for 20 years after being elected to office in 1981 as the ward councillor for Watlington.

A family statement described her as "a great leading lady" and a "great role model" for the council. She was a "great role model" for the council.

It occurred "She had a great gift to be able to work with a diverse group of people and make things happen."

Boy beats robber

CRIMINALS are 11-year-old boy managed to beat off an attempted robbery by a teen last night in Cowley last Thursday. The boy was walking along Daffodil Way at around 10pm when the robber intended to be 14 or 15 years old, grabbed his wallet as he attempted to steal from him.

But the robber was unsuccessful and ran off after a short while.

The boy was described as a white male of slim build, 5ft 10in tall, wearing a black hoodie and jeans.

Anyone with information about the incident is asked to call 01865 200000 or 101.

The Low Carbon Hub launched its drive to get schools in Oxfordshire to install solar panels on Tuesday.

Oxfordshire is 'a safer place' after campaign

FFRC members in Oxfordshire have saved 250 lives and 250 injuries more than 113 fatalities according to figures published by the county's insurance industry.

As part of the 10th-anniversary campaign, Oxfordshire Fire and Rescue set out to reduce the number of deaths from fires and road collisions and the cost of accidents, and save 250 people to make them safer.

Fire fighters were given 25 years to save the community 100 fatalities and prevent 250 people from being injured when launched in 2004.

And the latest figures, published at the start of April 2014, show the service has achieved its target for two years ahead of schedule.

By Adana Pinn

adana.pinn@oxfordshire.gov.uk

David Edwards, chief fire officer for Oxfordshire, said "Oxfordshire was hit with the statistics to help make Oxfordshire a safer place". "We thought that what we had worked on was everybody from the service, the county council and partners has paid off to such an extent that we have reached our target less than two years early."

We have now set even more challenging targets to meet in the next two years and we are looking forward to working with the community to make this county even safer. Figures were based on December fires and road accidents in the county year on year and the associated financial loss of life and monetary costs.

Railway Stars, deputy leader of Oxfordshire County Council with responsibility for the fire service said "Local people really do care about the very best fire service services of their region."

"That is evidenced by the delivery of the 10th-anniversary two years ahead of schedule, which is a fantastic achievement by everybody who has been involved."

The road across the fire and rescue service across Oxfordshire is around 10 pence for each mile, which I can see that most people will agree is a great value for money."

Office demolition plans get the go ahead from committee

PLANNING to knock down offices at Abingdon in Oxfordshire and replace them with housing was approved by the Oxford City Council.

The Oxford City Council's Planning Committee approved the plans on Wednesday.

New Abbey Court will be demolished to make room for two three-storey buildings, comprising nine flats, four houses and a garage.

Objectors had been submitted to the council about the plans, but they were rejected. The council said it was in favour of the plans.

Paul Robert, Mayor of Oxford, said:

in Oxford City Council's planning committee, which approved the plans to knock down the building and replace it with housing.

The council said it was in favour of the plans, which would create nine flats, four houses and a garage.

They came up with changes to the plans, but the council said it was in favour of the plans, which would create nine flats, four houses and a garage.

"I am pleased that some people were concerned about the plans, but the committee has rejected them, and we are in favour of the plans, which would create nine flats, four houses and a garage."

Celebrating Holst's music

A PERFORMANCE of the music of British composer Gustav Holst, whose work achieved lasting effect through his compositions during the First World War, comes to Oxford at St John the Evangelist Church on Saturday.

Conducting the orchestra will be David Lunn, who is looking forward to performing at Oxford this weekend.

"I have been doing a little research into Gustav's life and his music ever since seeing his 'Hymns of Jesus' in the 'Ox' last year."

I found that the composer really

New home in beauty spot

Four-year years after Bob and Christine Parker moved their new home at Victory Fields near the Cheltenham village of Upper Heyford, Bob brought them back full circle to the site they knew when they first met.

The former Gloucestershire community of 40 houses at Victory Fields was the beauty spot they would visit on trips from Birmingham where they lived in the early days of their relationship.

Now it's where they ought together on sunny days – in between rounds of golf at The Wyndham Golf Club near Shipston-on-Avon where they both have fine-tuned businesses.

They lived there for 22 years but when Bob, 49, started his running the golf business, he owned it. Bob and Christine, 42, also decided to leave the site of the early 1980s development and build a better, smaller house.

They found what they were seeking at Victory Fields, a collection of 40 houses, close to the green up through the village and Cheltenham and the house of an architect and landscape architect in a new house that suited their personality.

Victory Fields comprises over 300 homes, almost equivalent to the number of houses in Cheltenham and Oxford.

The new community holds the promise of a new primary school, a village local shop, a proposed public house, a nursery, a designated space for play and a "house we were selling was decided to demolish our property and build our little 3 1/2 bed, modern house."

"When we lived here, we were very happy but it was quite a bit larger and quite close to the main road which has got more and more busy."

"We wanted something smaller and with a smaller garden – we probably have had an acre of land but we still needed a new house for us to entertain and get up family."

"We will see some signs as we are moving to Cheltenham one day and we had a look and that's what started it all. He initially said we would sell our property through the house but having looked at Victory Fields it fitted our needs really so we decided to put down a deposit."

The couple bought off-plan from Linden Homes, and by getting in early they secured the open plot, to make the best use of the house, including having one bedroom home is a convenient driving route and a new car park.

The high-quality new houses are located by the main road but the site and as an ideal one home to the house of the first house.

Robert has looked in Linden Homes, a major quality and affordable value as well as the inclusion of 10-year 10-year warranties and 10-year maintenance warranty.

Prices start at £229,950 to find out more or to register your interest, call 01235 544935 or visit the website bucksmagazines.co.uk.

Connells endorses new Government code for the lettings industry

Local lettings agency Connells based in London has issued a 'code of practice' to its agents and landlords which has been launched by Housing Minister Brendan Lewis.

The code, which covers every tenancy, landlords and how to let tenants in the Capital area, says the code is a positive step to clarifying the lettings industry to benefit tenants and landlords alike. "All of our lettings agents here at Connells are fully trained and qualified with the Association of Residential Lettings Agents (ARLA)," said lettings manager Chris Butler-King.

"We follow a strict code of conduct as part of the ARLA qualification and welcome anything which reinforces industry best practice and is looking to stamp out unacceptable, unregulated landlords which give the industry a bad name.

"Although this new code is quite detailed, it merely reinforces lettings practices which Connells lettings is and has for years been adhering to, so protecting client money by way of a money protection scheme or providing clear and transparent information on fees and terms at outset. It is great to see Housing Minister Brendan Lewis highlighting industry best practice."

If you have a property to let, speak to Connells Lettings on 0800 789118 or email enquiries@connells.co.uk

Ford collects top honours at What Car? magazine's annual awards for second-hand motors

Focus is 'Best Used Car' of 2014

THE Ford Focus has been named as What Car? magazine's Best Used Car of the Year – the second time within years the supermini model has won the accolade.

It was praised for inclusion of performance, equipment and value with second-hand examples of the car and premium model selling for around £10,000.

As well as taking home the most awarded, the Focus was also named as the Best Used Family Car for the fourth time in eight years.

The Focus supermini came runner-up to the Ford Fiesta in the 2013 awards, although the Focus did pick up the award for Best Used Small Car this year.

What Car? editor Jim Butler said: "The Ford Focus is our Used Car of the Year because of the choice offered to buyers."

There are many Focus cars in excellent condition, and different engines to choose from.

The conclusion – Focus is a winning proposition. Focus offers a reasonable budget and get a driver's car with great handling, bringing a lot of enjoyment and delivering great value for money.

Ford celebrated another year's accolade, maintaining a trend of success for the company in the awards, having picked up at least one honour in the last seven years.

Mark Denard, chairman and senior director of Ford of Britain, was delighted with the awards. He said: "To think What Car? for motoring, Ford is a great name with the Used Car Awards."

Ford's range of vehicles – sedans, MPVs and estate cars – has been a success story for the company, as it is the work car leader.

He added: "This is why Focus and Fiesta continue to delight so many customers across all sectors of the market."

The Ford Focus was named Best Used Car of 2014 by What Car? magazine as the overall winner.

"A relationship built to last."

Your Ford is still running strong after 4+ years.
We'll keep it that way."
